Description: Knowledgemotion has created a proprietary platform called boclips to enable education providers to find, license and use video in educational resources (e-textbooks and websites to LMSs). The platform features over 1.8 million videos aggregated from some of the world's most respected content owners including the BBC, Getty Images, AP News, Bloomberg News and British Movietone. These videos cover all areas of learning - from scholastic, to English language learning, to corporate and vocational. Boclips aggregates over two million rights-ready video clips from some of the world's largest and most respected content producers onto a single platform. Proprietary algorithms then map these clips to the curricula and courses used by education providers around the world, ensuring relevant search results for courseware designers, instructors and students. All videos are rights-ready, and contain stories from 1895 to yesterday.
